“ Marie Ann Snider, my dear Aunt Marie
how we will miss our visits with you, my mom and me.
Now in heaven, with all who've gone on before
I can only imagine the reunion in store.
What a glorious celebration, it's Easter as we know
I can picture it now, just how it will go.
The angelic choir proclaiming " I know that my redeemer lives.
What comfort, this sweet sentence gives! "
Jesus will welcome all of you " Come join Me, come join us, sit at My table Marie, the place I've prepared for you, we will talk, share a meal, & some fresh brewed coffee.

“ Dear Sweet Aunt Marie;
My Godmother & my friend. I have so, so many memories that I cherish. You and my mom, drinking coffee, while cooking, freezing and canning everything that one can imagine. The endless boxes, freezer bags, mason jars.
Riding my bike with Linda delivering papers and coming back to your house with our treats we bought from Sunset Store with our tips. You'd be at the kitchen table, with a cup of coffee and just give us a look, a smile. You were happy, because we were happy.
You were always there. At every family gathering. Having coffee and just enjoying the visiting. You loved the chatter, the stories, the banter.
Over the years, & amongst many others, we have shared & experienced important celebrations, weddings, births, baptisms, birthdays, graduations, and so on. We have had much sorrow, and much loss too. Somehow, through it all, by the grace of God, we went on.

Now, we, I, must go on without you. For me, what I will miss most, are the visits at my house. You, my mom, and me. My best friends. My coffee clutch. The Kardashians. We discussed the days headlines. (solved all the worlds problems of course), got updated on the families activities and well being. All over a cup of coffee.
Then as my grandkids came along, things got crazier, more fun, & exhausting.
Somehow amongst the endless diaper changes, toys scattered everywhere, we still managed to visit. The kids, they really looked forward to G.G. & Auntie Ree days.
The extra fries & some chicken nuggets that always made it into the bag when they got lunch on their way over, or the illustrious Tim Bits that came with their muffins if early in the day. Robert, Nora and David all knew the routine. "Make a path kids, G.G. & Auntie Ree are on their way". They'd clear a path and wait to hear them pull in, they'd watch by the garage door. They loved the visits. My favorite memories will always be our annual Christmas Party with G.G. & Auntie Ree.

It was about two years ago when mom and I knew something wasn't right. One particular visit, as the kids ram rodded around; Nora, who had just started walking, would suddenly stop, turn to Aunt Marie. She would go to her side and snuggle, putting her head on Aunt Marie's knee. She must have done that 4-6 times in that visit. It was as if she knew something was wrong. Mom and I asked if she was ok, she insisted she was just tired. But we knew it was more. The next night she ended up in the emergency room. We almost lost her then. God answered our prayers, (and believe me, there were many, many people praying), he gave her , us, more time.

One thing that is ever apparent about Aunt Marie, to anyone that knew her, is that she loved her kids , grandkids and great grandkids immensely. She lived for them, literally.

Though not feeling well, and after repeated hospital stays, she was determined to live everyday possible. Over the last 2 years, though her body was failing her, her heart remained strong, (did you know she was born with an enlarged heart? It's true, and makes total sense), each beat representing another day she so desired with her kids, their kids, great grandkids, her sisters, brother-in-law, nieces and nephews. But most of all, her immediate family. She was so proud of them. She so wanted to be sure that they would stay close, in touch, and gather together.

Until we meet again, rest in Gods arms Auntie Ree,
With love from your Goddaughter,
Debbi
