“ I was thinking of Amy today and just wanted to pass along my sincerest condolences to Mrs. and Mr. Newman. I always felt that I've had a very hard life, but Amy always made me feel ashamed because she faced all her challenges with a much more positive view on life than I did. I know that so many people liked her -- both for her spirit and for her determination. I never sensed any self-pity when I spoke with her, and I know from her that there were a few "beaus" in hot pursuit, and one in particular who probably could have been something more, but it wasn't meant to be (some guy overseas???). I'm so grateful for knowing her and I just wanted to let others know, especially her parents, that I think about her often, and I always wondered who she would be today. All my love and prayers for her eternal memory and with the knowledge that she's serving a higher purpose elsewhere in the world. With love, Anna Kelly.

“ I remember Amy fondly from when I visited her at WMU in Kalamazoo and when we hung out at Ashley's in Ann Arbor when she worked there as a graphic designer -- I never thought much about the artist Willem De Kooning until Amy mentioned that he was one of her favorite artists. Amy was very warm and generous and even came to see a play I was in and didn't laugh (too much) at my poor English accent. Amy is still with us in our memories, so she is not very far from us, really. Her parents should be proud that they raised such a warm, kind, and generous person who still manages to be in our thoughts in a crowded world with infinite noise. She also made a great cup of coffee.

“ My fondest memories of Amy are from a High School. We had a drafting class where there were only three girls. The teacher used to let only us girls leave the class if we had finished our work. The boys had to stay. Taking full advantage of his chauvinism, we'd drive to 7-11 for Slurpies and M&Ms and be gone the whole hour. She was a fun person to be with, and I will always remember her as one of the nicest people I have ever met. God Bless Amy's family. You are all in our thoughts and prayers. Sarah Ek and family.

“ I was a high school friend of Amy's. I met her through Barb Austin. We both were 'apprentices' for Dance Club. She was one of the sweetest and kindest girls in our high school class. I am so sorry for your loss.

“ I'm so sorry to hear about Amy's passing. I can remember Amy, coming to our house to play with my younger Sister Kathy. I can remember wrestling with both Amy and Kathy. I'll always remember Amy's smile, and her giggling. Most of all, her positive attitude.
