“ The first time I met Bryan was when Marcia brought him home to meet our family for the first time. I wondered about her judgement. Here was this dark, Italian guy, shiny black slicked back hair in a duck's a--, leather jacket, tight jeans and shoes coming to a point sharp enough to puncture skin with a swift kick. Here was Marcia, almost in her poodle skirt, with this greaser. His buddies were even more scary. I thought Marcia was doomed to end up in jail, pregnant, or worse. Not so. She kept bringing him around and he kind of grew on me. Not long after, Bryan joined the Air Force, I thought...what a change. They got married and started their family up in Marquette, MI. When he was done with his service to our country and they moved back to southeast Michigan was when I really, really got to know him a lot better, and learned very quickly what a wonderful, loving man my sister had chosen. Their family continued to grow and each child was so lucky to have been brought in to this loving family. I learned many things from Bryan, not the least of which was to give people a chance. Bryan had a unique way of looking at things, thinking them through before making a decision, and always giving people the benefit of the doubt. He was considerate, adaptable, funny, and so committed to family. I love this man dearly and treasure all the time we were able to spend with him and his family. He will be missed in so many ways, and the world will be lacking without his presence, but Heaven will become better welcoming him in. I love you, brother, and consider myself lucky having known you.

“ Nothing mattered more to Bryan than the people around him; family, friends, a stranger on a bench....he valued the right things in life. He was a quiet, graceful teacher that made me better through constant, unfaltering example. I can never express my gratitude for the great woman that he and Marcia raised and that I am so fortunate to have as my partner in life, the grandchildren he loved so perfectly or the family he welcomed me into. Today, I'll pause to be sad that he isn't physically here with us. For the rest of my days I will be better because of him, value the things that really matter, and think of him every time I see a man that wears the hell out of a cowboy hat. Love you and miss you Dad.

“ Kindness, laughter & joy are just a few of the words that come to mind when I think of Bryan. He was not only our brother-in-law, but was a trusted friend and confidant who was always there to ease our pain, lift us up and to definitely make us laugh. The way he treated everyone and the way he lived his life is truly an inspiration and will never be forgotten. He was a rare and special person and our love and memories of him will be forever in our hearts. You will be so missed Bryan A. Heaven has received a beautiful soul.

“ Awesome dad, silent warier for all of his family a truly wealthy man of all of life's experiences. He has given us the foundation for deeply rooted trees (kids) that can weather any storm and stand tall against the strongest of winds , like a duck not much of the rainy days of life ever soaked his feathers ,we were given a miracle of the last few years so much doing , so much laughter, so many lessons learned
