“ It is so weird to say this but 'Carole, we miss you so much at the lake'. We never thought of this, as there were only countable days in a year when she would not show up at the lake. She was first to come and last to leave the lake after sunset. She greeted everyone who stopped by the lake with her cute smile and would chitchat. She loved to talk and have conversations. I still remember that it was after quite a while that we (me and Ashish) made it to the lake, seeing us she lighted up and she hugged me tight. This is by far the best of her memory. She loved to wear different hats and cute earrings. Coming to lake will always remind me of you Carole, your smile, you holding your camera taking pictures, you dancing with joy watching a gorgeous sunset. Hope you are watching over us and your favorite lake16 from heaven and taking pictures.

“ I met Carole at the lake 19 years ago. Her photographs of the sunsets were stunning. She would wait until after it set for "the afterglow" as she called it. I called her, "the lady of the lake." Seemed as if she was keeping watch of waters. I'm sure she is with Jesus still watching the lake. We had wonderful conversations, the two of us, alone. I loved her. I will miss her, always.

“ I met Carole 10 years ago at Lake Sixteen, shortly after my 14 year old son died. We became very close friends. I wasn't going to the Lake as often the last few years so I didn't get to spend as much with her. She was a woman of God and a good Christian with a heart of gold. She use to bake and cook and bring me stuff to take home for me and my husband. If you needed or asked for anything she would be there in a heartbeat. One of her most treasured memories is when she did some missionary work in Haiti,, she always wanted to return there. She is home with Jesus now and has the best view of her sunsets that she loved so much. It's very lonely going to the Lake now without her and her precious dog, Sweet Thing there. She will always be missed.
