“ While I didn't know Dan extremely well I have learned a lot in the past year from his life that led me to write the following.

Journey

We each have a journey in life to travel.

The path isn't always smooth.

What do we do when we find ourselves thrown into an ocean where we can't stay afloat and believe that the help we see is a mirage?

Do we dare to trust?

Do we dare to believe?

How can one float above the water at the same time but yet seem to drown?

Yet it can be so.

When we enter a realm where we waver between life and death and our vision grows dim in our physical world, it grows clearer in our spiritual souls.

We dare to believe what we had no faith to see.

We forgive fully which enables us to love purely.

We no longer fear the unexpected but embrace our journey and learn to live after all.
