“ I've known Don for sometime now. We first met when I was invited to the relief sale in Mio. He was always excited to have his family and friends around him for this special occasion. After the relief sale he would buy chicken from the sale and have a pretty lavish picnic. (I enjoyed these times together with him and his family). Afterwards we would all gather around a campfire he had prepared for everyone's enjoyment. I was especially impressed with his ability to golf, every day, one of his many passions. He was always kind to me.

After his decline, I would sit with him, sometimes. (It seemed he was taking care of me, instead of the other way around). Lol. He was a good friend and I will sorely miss him. I know he is with his beloved wife again now. I take comfort in knowing that. God Bless you, Don. We will meet again. Alice
