“ Mom was selfless and spent her whole life trying to take care of her family's needs, without ever thinking of herself. She never made a lot of money but would always send cards and gifts to relatives she almost never saw. My sisters and I could count on her help and support for any problems we faced while she was happy and willing to do her own shopping at the Salvation Army or Goodwill. Mom never drove and spent many cold mornings waiting for the Woodward bus at 6.a.m. to go to work. She enjoyed the friends she made at the John Johnson co. Mom and I took many vacations together and of course she would insist on paying more than her share. In the end, I tried to make it up to her by taking care of her needs. Her greatest joy in her final years was her greatgrandson Dylan. I think she lived this long because she felt needed even after dementia had clouded her mind. We can only hope she felt the love her family had for her. We surely felt her love for us. Rest in peace with God, mom. I will miss you and love you forever. Eddie your one and only son (moms words not mine)
