“ After my parents moved into Trowbridge, March of 2013, I became fast friends with dear Evelyn. She was attractive, energetic, and loved people. We often talked about books and life in general. There was nothing I couldn't discuss with Evelyn. She told me that when she died, she didn't want anyone to cry because she had a great life. Well, I'm here to tell you that I shed some tears when I found out about losing Evelyn. What a woman! I imagine that she will be missed by many. My condolences to her family. Evelyn will stay in my heart and thoughts as she was one of the most interesting human beings I've ever met. And we always kissed one another. With love, Gaye Tischler
