“ Fred was a special person who cared deeply about others. I met him as a Freshman at HPHS when we shared a History class. We even went on a date once, but I was very shy and friendship seemed a better option than dating. In recent years we stayed in touch by email. I will miss him. My condolences to his family, especially his children.

“ The neighborhood at Sturbridge was so unique and nothing can ever replicate the togetherness we all had. I remember the block parties and the hot wheel races. We were able to witness our children growing up into adulthood. It was a major part of life for all my family and it was due to Fred being part of it. I will always remember the late night trips to White Castle, in which you had to go whether you wanted to or not. I also can remember that Fred would always say that you shouldn't buy a bag of chips from a store unless you tasted them first to make sure they were fresh. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the entire Restum family.

“ He was the first boy to take me to the State Fair. We were about 12. We walked from California St to Woodward and took a bus. He gave me a ring and I gave it back. I was terrified. We laughed about that each time we saw each other. Fond memories of being kids. He will truly be missed. My thoughts and prayers for his beautiful family.

“ The news of Fred's death breaks my heart. I've always felt close to the Restum family, but Fred was a special case because he was a student, a colleague and a friend. I will never forget him. He could reach kids with whom many others had given up as lost because he sincerely cared about them. He had the potential to accomplish much more than he did in his short lifetime, but he never gave up on the people he loved and cared for. Highland Park was a better place because he lived and taught there. I will miss him even more since I saw him so rarely after my retirement. I offer my sincerest condolences to Fred's family and friends. I wish that I could be with you on these sad days, but I must be in Cleveland this weekend.
