“ I want to share a few memories that truly capture the essence of the wonderful man we all loved.

Some of my favorite memories with Jerry, and there are many, but the ones that hit my heart the most is the time he took me mushroom hunting. We spent hours wandering through the woods, and he shared not just his knowledge of the different types of mushrooms, but also stories about his own adventures in nature. I'll never forget how he laughed at me because I wore white tennis shoes. If anyone knows anything about mushroom hunting, the best time is to go is really early in the morning, after a rainy night. So it didn't take long before I knew why he was laughing at me, my white tennis shoes soon became filled with mud and water. That day wasn't just about finding mushrooms; it was about connecting, laughing, and creating a bond that I will forever cherish.

Then there were our Hooter outings, where we'd indulge in wings and beer, just the two of us talking about everything and anything. Those moments were precious to me; they filled my heart with laughter, and great conversations, that I will deeply miss.

And of course, there were our epic euchre games every month. I must admit, he loved to beat me, but it was always done with a playful spirit and a twinkle in his eye. Every match was filled with friendly banter and a sense of competition that only made our relationship stronger. He taught me not just to play the game, but to enjoy the time spent together and the fun that came with it.

As I reflect on these memories, I realize that Jerry was more than just a family member; he was a friend, a mentor, and a source of joy in my life. His laughter and lessons will forever echo in my heart, and I will always carry these memories with me. RIP Jerry, you will be missed dearly!
