“ April 30, 2024: So very sorry to have just found this obituary of my dear friend and roommate at Boston university from so long ago. We lost touch after we left BU and I greatly regret not having tracked her down while she was still alive. I'll never forget "The Great Road Trip" we took the summer of 1962, driving from Boston to Pittsburgh and stopping at what Gwen called "The Bates Hotel" along the way.. We piled our luggage in front of the door, since the lock looked very unreliable.

Gwen was also a good friend of mine at BU. So sorry to learn of her passing. I loved her sense of humor, and her love for Paul and her family.

“ When I was a young engineer working with Paul at Chrysler, he and Gwen invited me over for dinner in the fall of '72. I was a bit embarrassed because I thought I was coming down with a cold, but went anyway. Gwen took one look at me and said "you don't have a cold, you're allergic to rag weed". I replied that "I'd never been allergic to anything in my life". She said "go the doctor anyway you now live in Mich" . I went that week. The doc said " you have a terrible allergy to rag weed". She was such a smart lady!! A terrible loss we all mourn.

I worked with Gwen when she was a therapist for Beaumont she was funny and very bold, but I did like working with her, She really liked giving me a hard time but I did enjoy your cigarette breaks together.

*Our deepest sympathy to the family from both Theresa and I as Gwen was always a fun a joyful person to be around when we saw her with Paul at the car events.
We know she enjoyed life, good people and giving in just about every way possible.
Our memories of her will always be with a smile both from her giving and ours of just knowing her.*

I worked with Gwen when Beaumont Troy first opened. Gwen was such an excellent therapist. Just loved her dedication to friends and her patients. I will never forget witnessing her hot air balloon ride when she turned 40..she was so frightened. My prayers go out to Paul, Stephen and his family.
