“ An amazing and kind woman. Irene was given a ladybug □ clock necklace by her son, Ron, my husband's father. He carried this necklace across the ocean during his military travels to give to her many years ago. The first day I met Irene, she gave me this necklace because I was engaged to her grandson. She got to know me and believed me worthy of taking care of one of her most treasured possessions. Little did she know. my father and mother have always called me their little lady bug. We will forever be connected through the love of this memento and through sharing love for Aaron. Rest In Peace my sweet grandmother.
