“ Where do I even begin, you've been my best friend since I was 4. You were one of my very first friends I made at that age, there was also Kyle Kirby and Johnny Wright. I will never forget the times you would push me off the yellow balance beam at school during recess. However, countless times would I cross the street, sit on the curb of your grandma's house, just to sit and talk. You were definitely there always for me. Whether it was to cheer me up [by going 90 on I-75], listen to my sorrows, or whatever may the case was. You always made sure I was smiling or at least in a better mood. You were definitely one of the few that got me and I can be myself around without the judgement. I will forever be grateful for what you have shown me what a true and best friend is.

“ i didn't see him very often but last time i seen him was sometime the past summer for a grad party, at the grad party, he let me braid his bread when he first got there and wore it the entire time he was there, i don't know if he wore it because it made me happy or because he liked the look but it was definitely a look on him

“ Josh, little cuz where do I even start !?! I remember you as little happy go lucky guy in your toddler years to pushing thru your teen years and playing ball in my backyard for the airshow cookouts. Although I haven't seen you in the last few years of your adult life I know you stayed true to your roots and always thinking positive. You were a fantastic dad and I know how much you genuinely and unconditionally loved your babies and Celia. As much as you brought hope and light to surrounding family and friends I know the favor will be returned for those to surround and love your family and help them along this life's journey now that your physically not there but spiritually looking down. Gone to soon but you will never be forgotten. ❤️💙 We love ya Josh....Ride On

“ I've been trying to write this out since Friday morning, I haven't been able to come up with the words. I'm not going to talk about the tragedy of losing this beautiful soul im going to talk about his life and the impact he had on me.

From day one he treated me like al title brother in every way. He bought me food when I didn't have money, he gave me advice when I needed it. He taught me everything he knew in the gym to transform myself from 100 pounds to 200 in a year.

But most of all he broke the ice between my wife and I 15 year ago almost I was to scared and shy to talk to her and he helped us both break the ice. We now have 3 children all happy and healthy.

I will forever remember what he did for me and his words of wisdom. I will never forget this man, a brother!

Until Valhalla my friend.

“ Josh was always a smiling and laughing presence in the gym. He always had a good joke on deck, and could take one in kind. I'll never forget the last time we met helping him into a bench suit to bench 6 plates. He was, and still is, an inspiration to me. Thanks, Josh.

“ Josh was one of the funniest guys I've met. He could easily make someone comfortable and laugh. I've never seen a man that adored a woman as much as he adored Celia. He was an amazing father, and he was a great friend to Kevin. We will forever be honored that he was in our wedding, and apart of the the many memories we all have made through the years. We love you guys.
