“ Their are no words to tell you how very sorry I am. I used to work with her and got to know her a little bit and she had the biggest smile and such warm and bubbly personality. Such a sweet smart kind pretty young lady that accomplished so much. May you find some comfort in knowing that all the terrible times we may experience here are only temporarily and heaven is forever. God has Laura and she is at peace and watching over you all and you will all be reunited in eternal heaven one day. May god bless you

“ My deepest condolences go out the family and friends Ms. Osaer in their troubling time of need. As a person who has lost siblings at a young age I can empathize with the pain and suffering you are dealing with at the moment but I promise you.... Even though, in all honesty, the pain has never completely gone away, I have been able to find peace within. May all who knew Laura also someday find peace within. With Sympathy from a person passing by.

I jumped from my car and called 911 and sprinted to her vehicle. It's something I will never forget. I am so sorry for Laura's family and friends. She sounds like a great person. You must have been the gentleman in front of my ambulance. I was driving back towards the city of Flint when this horrific accident unfolded in front of us. All I can remember is seeing a plume of smoke over the road and immediately stopping and activating my emergency lights. This incident is still very troubling for myself. I wish there was more I could have done or if I could have been just those few extra moments faster and been in front of her. My deepest condolences go to this family. I'm sorry I wasn't able to do more.

Laura once came to my place of worship, a Sikh temple, with my family. She had a deep respect for the people she engaged with and was always eager to gain awareness and education. Laura was a natural leader and provided so much love and learning moments during our time together. When I think about Laura, I think about her resiliency. I am so honored to have crossed paths with such a beautiful person, inside and out. To the Osaer family, I send my deepest love and condolences. To my beautiful sister Laura, I love you forever.*

“ Dear Laura,

We worked together for a month when you were a third year medical student just starting your clinical rotations and I was an intern just starting my year. Since then I have seen you almost everyday. We would smile and say "hi" or nod our heads we would barely talk and I cannot say that I know you well, but you were a part of my world.

Dear beautiful Laura, I went to medical school in Iraq, and for the most part I lived in war. I lost friends to violence and accidents. I lost colleagues and professors who taught me, and other people who were around me but we never talked. One day they were there, and the next they were no more. You would think that someone might get used to this kind of loss or develop a defense mechanism where they either become hard hearted or careless or they'd shut down. But I choose to have hope everyday in life, and I chose to believe in something other than how arbitrary and surreal this life is. And I go on and save patients, I make that decision everyday. That's is why the sudden traumatic loss of you is like putting salt on an eternally open wound for me.

Since I heard, I have cried for you everyday. I have cried for your young years, for all the hope that your smile carried, for you missing this exciting part of your life "the match", for the new beginning that was supposed to happen for you, but above all I cried for your Mother and Father. And with you, i have cried for all the people I lost traumatically just like I lost you and for their young years.

Dear Laura, I am so sorry that this life is so unfair and I am extremely mad that it is this unfair. You left so young and so healthy and so beautiful and this is how I will remember you. You will always stay young in my memory.

Dear lovely Laura, I don't know if I am courageous enough to come say hi on Friday. I have been that hopeless romantic who refuses to believe in endings all my life. I chose to remember you passing me by in the hallway. I will still secretly hope to catch a glimpse of you in the corridor near the cafeteria or while I am making a turn to head to morning report.

Dear Laura, sleep tight, cozy and warm for you are loved. And I wish your Mother and Father's hearts, especially your mom's, just a little bit of peace and tranquility to help them through this very difficult time, and a little more everyday until their hearts are strong enough to carry this heavy load.
