“ Aunt Linda was the wife of my uncle Charlie. When I was in grade school, we visited them at their house, and at our house, usually during the Christmas holiday and a few other times in the spring or summer. Even after Uncle Charlie passed away, we continued to include her as part of our family. She and my mom would take trips up to northern Michigan and the UP (upper peninsula) to go sightseeing (waterfalls and parks, mostly) and golfing. Aunt Linda was a kind and caring person, and I miss her very much. I would even visit her occasionally and help with her computer. She was always the most hospitable person. I was sad to hear about her passing but wasn't contacted about her arrangements, or I would have been there.

Months before her passing, we had planned to meet for lunch some time after one of her visits to the University of Michigan Health System (now Michigan Medicine), but her appointments were rescheduled or ended later than expected. I only wish we could have had that lunch together.
