

Lloyd George Hall

September 12, 1949 - May 3, 2024

Lloyd was faithful, humble, godly, kind, thoughtful, compassionate, generous...Lloyd Hall was diagnosed with cancer and still managed to persevere, inspiring us all with his resilience and unwavering determination to live life to the fullest. We have all lost a dear uncle, father, and friend, but let us remember the laughter, love, and joy that Lloyd brought into our lives. Together, we can honor his memory and cherish the moments that were shared. He had the kind of humor that could light up a room, the kind of smile that made you feel like everything was going to be alright. Lloyd was the kind of man who would go out of his way to help others, even when he himself was in need. He taught us that the real measure of success is not what you have in your life, but who you have in your life. He found his greatest joy in the happiness of those he loved, and his greatest accomplishment in their success. As we stand here today, let us not dwell on the sorrow of his departure, but let us celebrate his life, his love, and his spirit. Let us remember him not just as a friend, uncle, brother, or father, but as an inspiration, a guiding light. Let us carry his memory in our hearts, live his teachings in our actions, and spread his love in our lives.
