“Grandma Lulu was the only grandma I ever had. I never knew my father’s mother, and my mother’s mother was hit by a car and died before I was born. I always wanted a grandma, and I had the privilege of my dear friend, Vicky, sharing her beloved grandmother with me. I loved being able to call someone “grandma”, and grandma Lulu always made me feel like I was one of her grandchildren. She loved to tell stories of the past, which I found fascinating. She always seemed to have a good attitude about everything. She had a precious southern laugh, that seemed to put everyone at ease, even when times were hard. She had a way of not taking life too seriously; but at the same time, she took the time to enjoy the company of others and share her well-earned wisdom. I’ll never forget the fried bologna sandwiches she would make us for lunch. Everything she made was full of love and wonderful! I remember she had this special silver container on her counter in which she saved used bacon grease for her “special” recipes. Does anyone remember her cabbage? I remember having a cabbage “binge” up north at the cottage. It was unbelievable comfort food. I also remember, once, when I was trying to learn how to sell Tupperware, Grandma let me have a Tupperware party at her cottage. I didn’t have any business trying to sell anything. She was such a great sport! I think grandma and Vicky were the only guests. I was so nervous and grandma laughed so hard during the entire “demonstration”. I didn’t end up actually selling any Tupperware, but I sure have fond memories of that party! Even as grandma aged and her health declined, her attitude about life never wavered. I would see her occasionally at various family events and she was always the same: smiling, warm and happy to be with her family. She was a great role-model for making the best of the time God gives us on earth, and I am thankful I was able to know and love her.
