“ This post is in celebration of the life of my Grandmother Marion, who lived 91 years with style, class, resilience and love. I will let the story of her life be an inspiration to future generations. And I celebrate her strength in challenging circumstances, the love she had for her family and her way to always approach each day with class, style, resilience and love. She was and is loved more than she knew, though most of her family coming to see her before she passed was an affirming experience of just how much she was and is loved. I miss her. And wish I knew what else to type to sound clever about this. But I can't try to be clever now. I am still upset. And still missing her.

“ I have been blessed to have both Grandma Marion and Grandpa Buddy in my life for so long. I am grateful to them both for so many things. My childhood was full of fun-filled memories of hot summer afternoons at Grans’ enjoying family company, food, swimming, and laughs. Around age 10, I was inspired by Uncle Sam’s stories of California, so I started saving my bubble gum sales money to visit. Soon after, Grandma kindly let me tag along on her California journey. That very first trip with her opened up the world to me, in life changing ways. These formative memories with Grandma are a big part of my happiness in life. I would inherit her passion for traveling and making new friends. I remember her wedding with Grandpa Buddy, and am grateful to Granny for bringing him into our family. He has always been kind and patient and sweet, like a grounded rock in a sometimes-chaotic environment. His eternal optimism is inspiring and has shown me an important ingredient to happiness. After college I left Michigan, but I would look forward to annual visits to see Grandma and Grandpa. Their enduring love is an inspiration and model for me. I am sad to miss Grandma’s funeral, but so blessed to have been there with family surrounding her with love as she passed. How she loved to be around people, even to the end. Thank you, Grandma Marion, for life, love, and inspiration. I am ever grateful for your encouragement and support. You will be truly missed. All my love, Keith

“ My sympathy to the family. Death claims the lives of those we love. Recall pleasant memories you shared with your loved one. May you draw close to God in prayer and he will sustain you.-Psalms 55:22

“ *Dear Uncle Bud - we have many, many wonderful memories of visiting you and Aunt Marion in Royal Oak, Birmingham and Troy; and of your visits to Tulsa, El Paso and Tucson. What wonderful times!! Marion was a wonderful and gracious hostess; a warm and loving person; a great story teller and a great "addition" to the "Clark family"! Her enthusiasm for life; ability to enjoy the "little things"; loyalty and generosity to her friends and family; involvement in the community; and kindness to others - are all among the attributes she possessed. We will miss her!
Our deepest sympathy to you and the family!
Love you! JoAnn & Dave Becker*
