“ ,Marlene did the scheduling for the Western Wayne group at Comerica Bank and I was one she got to tell where to go.I once called her to tell her I wasnt planning on coming in, that I had attempted suicide the night before and was hospitalized. She came to visit me and really changed my life in all that she said. We had a certain closeness through the years, many will never know. She called me the daughter she never had. In my heart I knew she had to go. My tears will water the garden of life that will help me grow and cherish every moment God gives me. R.I.P. my dear friend, thank you for making a difference in my life.

“ Marlene was one of the first people I met when I joined Manufacturers Bank. Our friendship has lasted all these many years. She will be missed, especially her throaty laughter and willingness to help whoever needed. A good friend.....

“ Just a lengthening of the shadows, Just a shortening of the breath, Just a graying of the features --- Is this dying? Is it death? Just a rest for weary footsteps, Just a folding of tired hands, Just a glimpse across the river Where the Holy City stands. Just a closing of the eyelids, Just a hush, why mourn and weep? So it is the Heavenly Father Giveth his beloved sleep. Death? As, yes, we call it dying, When six feet of earth is thrust O'er the temple of our loved ones, And dust returns to dust. But when all mists have vanished, And we meet on yon bright shore, We shall know it was the entrance Unto life evermore
