“ Grandma was a very interesting lady. I have many fond memories of her when they lived in Hamtramck. I knew her as very devote in her faith as I have not seen in any other person while growing up & that I admire most about her. Being someone who does family genealogy, I am fortunate that I spent time with her talking about her childhood days. When she started having memory loss later, I was able to gain more knowledge of her through Eddie. I am forever grateful. At age 88 2 weeks shy of 89, probably anyone would say their years were many days spent growing, learning, compromising through many changes, hardships and happy memories. Thank you grandma for all your wisdom and for trying to teach me how to crochet. : Never took it up but always appreciated your patience in teaching a leftie. May your light shine down upon us. Love, Denise, Aaron and Justin
