“ My Godmother, my aunt in her younger days was the life of the party always made us laugh always there for us. We had great times at Houghton Lake and enjoyed many an adventure. Chris n I saw her before Christmas not so much the life of the party she once was she looked so frail but we did get a few smiles as we fed her some yummy desserts. So happy Chris n I saw her we were sad but it brought back the good times and that's how we want to remember her. I can just hear my dad saying omg now I have the three sisters together again they were a hand full for sure. Aunt May you will be missed and we all loved you. You were so special to me and my family xoxo your niece Deb

“ One night for dinner Donna served up a batch of May's homemade chicken noodle soup. It was delicious. As I got towards the bottom of the bowl I noticed a little pink thing floating around in the soup. I picked it out and realized it was a fake plastic finger nail. As if, on que May walked in the back door, saw me holding the nail and simply said “Oh, that's where that went”.
Oh how I'll miss her finger nail soup.
RIP Mom. Love you and miss you.

“ When I think of May, the first thing that comes to mind was how thoughtful and generous she was. I remember one year she asked Rod what he did for me for Mother's day and he responded that I wasn't his mother. She told him I was the most important mother he'd ever have because I was the mother of his children. That was so typical. I remember all the Sunday dinners she cooked in case anyone stopped by. All the special birthday overnights she organized for each grandchild every single year which included dinner out of their choosing. A fun craft to make and usually ending up with a good movie to snuggle up to. A big home made breakfast the next day was her final gift. She was wonderful to me when I returned from California a mess and for that I will always be grateful. She always stepped up unselfishly whenever needed. Rest in peace mom and keep Rod out of trouble. Love you always and forever💔
