“ I remember being 13years old and staying in Michigan with the family. It was the year after my father passed. Uncle Bob and I spent hours with him taking me to the driving range and golfing. He made a huge difference for me that summer. We laughed and I sliced the ball so much he thought maybe we should go for broke and just hit the batting cages with the golf clubs; because we went through about 400 golf balls in two weeks. So the last weekend here we are at the park me in pink shorts and softball cap trying to teach him how to hit a girls fast pitch softball. He missed for like 4 hours claims it was the sun in his eyes, so he put on my pink softball cap. I will never forget how he looked in that pink softball cap saying "pitch me one more cause you throw like a girl". We finally decided we both stank at each others sports and went bowling the last week where we were both bad. But thanks to him to this day, I go to the golf course as a female officer in the army with the other male officers and at least don't look like a complete moron, I slice as bad as they do.

I love you Uncle Bob
