“ This past week I had to do one of the hardest things in my life. I had to say goodbye to my brother and best friend. Ron was the most loving, caring, and forgiving person I know. I will miss the times that we had working on cars, riding our bikes and just hanging out. I will miss the swap meets, racing, hunting and much more. I have heard people talk about losing a loved one and how there is a part of them missing inside and I now know just what they were talking about. Things will never be the same. Love you brother.....until we meet again.

“ I have been dreading on writing this. It’s hard to write something that doesn’t seem real. Uncle Ron was a huge part of my life. He helped me grow into the man I am today. My uncle Ron was someone who you could always count on for ANYTHING. Someone who would always have your back no matter what. Someone who would come by and hangout with you just to give you company. Someone who could make you laugh your ass off over something stupid. Someone who could just make your day a lot better just by being around him. I will cherish all of the times we jumped on the Harleys and just went for a ride. All of the times we went to car shows and cruises. All of the times we went to the race tracks. Hunting trips and countless times he would come over my barn and help me on one of the thousand projects I have. If I didn’t have something I needed to get my car fixed, he would give me whatever he had to help me out. After doing something to my car or bike, I always looked forward to hearing his thoughts on it and his opinion on how he would’ve done it. These things will never be the same without him. He was the kind of guy who would give you everything in return for nothing. He has taught me so much through my life that I will always take with me and grow from. I know he’s up there in heaven playing cards with bingo and catching up with his dad. A part of me went up to heaven with you that morning. I hope you hit those golden streets in heaven on two wheels uncle Ron. I love you and will always miss you❤️

“ Ron was one of the kindest tough guys I ever knew he had a big impact on my life and I don't think he even knew from taking me on my first cross country ride to talking me through my first pass down a drag strip my life will forever be better because of it and I hope when my time comes I get to chase Ron's tail light once again
