“ I often think about pushing Sara on the swing set and her singing "I'm bringing home a baby bumblebee". She was about 2 years old...maybe younger. It was such a sweet moment. It was just me and her and we must have sang that song 10 times. Right then she had my heart. ”

“ I have a picture of Sara sitting on the floor of my living room, with six silly and goofy 8 year old boys, at one of Keith’s birthday parties. As shy as she could be at times, she was included with the boys because she was one of Keith’s good buddies. From the 2 year old girl we met when we moved in, thru elementary school, and then starring in Keith’s homemade “Scream” movie, complete with creepy mask on Keith and Sara portraying a young teenager gabbing on the phone, unaware of the creeper in the next room, which was the “ movie set” in Fran and Gavin’s basement, I watched the friendship grow. You never know how people’s lives will touch yours, but I’m so glad Sara was part of ours. Rest In Peace sweet Sara, I will miss you. ❤️
