“ I got to know Shirley at the nursing home. I would visit her every Wednesday. I would bring her a donut or some kind of treat. The Wednesday before her death she was very disoriented but she managed to have a visit with me and ate a little of the Zucchini bread I brought her. I loved sitting on her bed and her in her wheel chair and we would talk. She talked of her son and her daughters quite a bit. She loved all of you very much and never complained. I am very proud to have had her as a friend even though it was for only a year or so. I especially will always remember the hug she would give me when I would leave and she would say "Come Back." God Bless you Shirley. You are where you should be and won't be tired any more. I will keep you in my thoughts and I know we will meet again some day. God be with you. Love, Corrine
