There he particularly enjoyed his day-to-day work with the stock market. And in his free time, Thomas was a model railroader and a member of a Replay Baseball league for over thirty years.

“ My father was a great person. Whenever I came over to visit, I would catch him playing his Replay baseball games or on the online forum. He loved his baseball. He enjoyed talking with others online about baseball. He was proud to be a game tester. I would try to visit him every Sunday and we would work on the model railroad. Many times he would sneak upstairs and check the replay forums. My father was a perfectionist. When we would work on the model railroad, he would tear up sections of what we had built because he found a way to make it better. My father, his best friend Rick and myself built a beautiful railroad together which will always remind me of many great memories. I sadly, and will always regret, that I was not able to work on the railroad with him the last ten weeks before he went into the hospital because of my work schedule. I will truly miss him.

“ I was never fortunate enough to meet Tom in person, but we exchanged ideas many times on the Replay forum. He was a remarkably friendly, open, interesting guy, and we'd write about all kinds of things--New Orleans, the stock market, Polish words. I'm going to miss him very badly. My heartfelt condolences to all of Tom's loved ones.

“ Twice I met Tom at Replay Baseball Retreats in the city of Pittsburgh and each time I so enjoyed the company of Tom. I consider him a true friend. One of those people that even though the times of meetings with him were too far between and brief, I felt like I had seen him just the day before and I so enjoyed his company.

I live near an old railroad town called Galesburg, IL and Tom enjoyed knowing that.
